Use and Rights of Reproductions Made Upon Request

Researcher Agreement Form

Materials digitized, photocopied, or otherwise reproduced upon request are provided for use by the requestor for research, teaching, and private study. The supply of a digital or analog copy is not equivalent to permission to publish or reuse the material in any way beyond research, teaching, and private study. For other uses, such as broadcast, publication or online distribution, permission must be obtained from the item's rights holder. If the materials are still within their term of copyright, responsibility for copyright clearance is assumed by the requester. Northwestern University Library cannot assist with obtaining copyright permissions except for materials for which Northwestern University is the copyright holder.

The requester assumes sole responsibility for and agrees to defend and indemnify Northwestern University and its Board of Trustees, officers, employers, and agents for all claims, demands, costs, or expenses (including attorneys' fees) resulting from any infringement of the literary rights, copyrights, or other rights pertaining to the materials.

I have read the above statements and, with my signature, agree to abide by them.
