Northwestern University's Program of African Studies, founded in 1948, was the first program on Africa in the nation and the first multidisciplinary program at Northwestern. Developed by anthropologist Melville J. Herskovits to train a corps of scholars maintaining African interests across disciplinary lines, the Program grew to include core and associated faculty from such diverse disciplines as African-American studies, art history, history and literature of religions, law, management, medicine, music, and technology, as well as anthropology, history, political science, and sociology.

Founded with Carnegie Corporation funding, the Program has received support from a number of public and private sources outside the university, among them the Ford Foundation, the Office of Education, and the National Endowment for the Humanities. Private benefactors have also been cultivated. Numerous special projects and seminars have been conducted by the Program, including a Ford Foundation funded project to study factors affecting national unity; summer institutes in Ghana and Ethiopia; Office of Education sponsored seminars for high school teachers; and a project, also sponsored by the Office of Education, to design curriculum for a basic course in African Studies.

African languages, which were not stressed in the Program's early years, became a major part of the curriculum in 1964 with the establishment of the Department of African Languages (later the Department of Linguistics). Supported by Office of Education Language and Area grants, this department has offered training in a wide range of African languages, including, at various times, Yoruba, Twi, Swahili, Hausa, Amharic, Akan, and Arabic.

The Program has long maintained close contact with Africa and with Africanists from around the world. Visiting professors and lecturers are traditional, the Monday Night Lecture Series, one of the Program's oldest activities, draws both the Northwestern community and the general public to hear prominent Africanists. In addition, the Program strongly encourages both students and faculty to do field work in Africa, often supporting such research with various fellowships and grants.

Series 35/13
Boxes 1-60

Description of the Series (Boxes 1-25)

The Program of African Studies Records consist of correspondence, memos, proposals, reports, and related administrative material pertaining to the organization, special projects, and routine activities of the Program of African Studies Office. Dating mainly from the late 1960's and early 1970's, the files are arranged alphabetically by subject, and fill 25 boxes. Many of the larger subject files, especially those consisting primarily of correspondence, are organized chronologically.

Cross References: Additional material pertaining to the Program of African Studies may be found in the papers of the Program's first two directors, Melville J. Herskovits and Gwendolen M. Carter. The Herskovits Papers are especially valuable, as they document the founding of the Program and its early years.

Provenance: Most of the Program of African Studies Records were transferred to the Melville J. Herskovits Library of African Studies from the Program offices around 1974. Additional material was added after being separated from the Herskovits and Carter Papers.

Restrictions: None.

Separations: One inch of duplicates were discarded.

Description of the Addition (Boxes 26-56)

The addition to the Records of the Program of African Studies fills thirty-one boxes and spans the period 1960-1981. The records are divided into six categories: administrative; African studies in the United States; newspaper clippings; publications; public presentations; and summer training programs.

The administrative records are organized into four subgroups: correspondence; courses; faculty, staff, and students; and financial.

General correspondence is arranged chronologically and documents relations with other African Studies programs, visits, lectures, and important African issues. Subject correspondence is arranged in folders according to topical headings. The intra-university correspondence includes letters and memoranda relating largely to administrative and University wide concerns. Within topically organized folders the intra-university correspondence is chronologically arranged.

Course records typically include lecture notes, syllabi, reading lists, examination questions, and student papers reflecting the Program's curricular offerings. Materials relating to multiple courses are usually found within each folder. Records pertaining to Anthropology B25 (Africa: An Interdisciplinary Survey) and D25 (Modern Africa) are foldered separately.

The faculty, staff, and students records are arranged alphabetically by subject heading. The material includes rosters of Program faculty and students, student and faculty application materials, correspondence, and related materials. Several folders of curriculum vitae and related correspondence pertaining to Program appointments are alphabetically arranged and filed at the end of this body of records.

The financial records are organized topically under the following major categories: African National Unity Projects, Fellowships, the Ford Foundation, and the United States Office of Education. Lesser categories are grouped together at the front of the records. All categories are arranged alphabetically by key word of topical heading. The bulk of the records consist of grant applications and reports along with related correspondence.

The African Studies in the United States records concern sponsors of African study other than Northwestern's program. This category is divided into general records arranged alphabetically by topical headings and thereafter by conference groupings including the African Literature Association and the Association of African Studies Programs. The conference records contain mostly papers, newsletters, and pertinent correspondence and brochures.

A small amount of newspaper clippings, which originate from a variety of newspapers, are arranged in folders by subject heading.

Boxes 1- 60

The publications records include material relating to the Program’s Publications Committee, and feature correspondence on lecture series material intended for publication.

The public presentations records are divided into three categories: general, Monday Night Lecture Series, and programs. The general group contains two folders of correspondence and one folder of material relating to the Field Museum of Natural History. The Monday Night Lecture Series featured a series of talks open to the public and sponsored every quarter by the Program. There was usually one lecture per week during the academic year but the number per night and dates of the lectures did vary occasionally. The records are arranged chronologically, and typically include lecture schedules and descriptions, along with related correspondence. The program subgroup is arranged alphabetically by subject heading, and details various other events sponsored by the Program.

The summer training program records are arranged alphabetically by subject heading and contain information on seminars and research programs. There are three subgroups: the Chicago African Studies Seminar, which contains general correspondence and the publication Newsletter (vol. 1, no. 1-vol. 4, no. 6); high school and college institutes which were operated with grants from the Educational Professions Development Act; and the Institute on Africa, sponsored by the University of Wisconsin.

Provenance: The Program of African Studies records were transferred to the University Archives in three separate accessions. The bulk of the records, consisting of forty-eight archival boxes, were received on June 10, 1985 from the Program of African Studies via Hans Panofsky, Curator of the Melville J. Herskovits Library of African Studies (Accession #83-160). The two other accessions were received on November 9, 1983 (Accession #83-160) and February 2, 1984 (Accession #84-27) and were comprised of five archival boxes and two folders, respectively. Both were transferred to the University Archives by the Herskovits Library.

Restrictions: The administrative records (Boxes 26-41) may be used only with permission of the University Archivist.

Description of the Addition, 1960-1980

This addition to the Records of the Program of African Studies fills 4 boxes and spans the dates 1960 to 1980, with the bulk of the materials dating from the mid-1970s. The records are divided into two main categories: correspondence; and grants and proposals.

Two additional folders document conferences and seminars sponsored by the Program, including an attendance list for the 1960 Contemporary South Africa Conference, and conference planning information for a South Africa Conference.
Correspondence is organized into three subseries: administrative correspondence; general administrative correspondence; and subject files.

The bulk of the records consists of the administrative correspondence of the directors of the Program: Gwendolen Carter (1967-1974) and Abraham Demoz (1974-1980); the assistant director, Fay Leary (1975-1980); and the program coordinator, Beth Miller. Most of the correspondence was generated by Fay Leary. Administrative correspondence is arranged chronologically and documents relations with other African Studies programs, other departments within and outside Northwestern University, and information about donations.

General administrative correspondence, organized chronologically, consists mainly of letters and copies of letters forwarded to the Program by other departments within the University, or correspondence of general relevance to the Program from other institutions.

Subject correspondence folders are arranged alphabetically according to topical headings and contain reports and correspondence. Materials are arranged chronologically within each folder. Folders document a variety of topics, including the progress of Black Studies and International Studies programs, South Africa divestiture (including a small number of newspaper clippings), the ICARIS conference on racism, language priorities in African studies, and field research study in Africa. The Final Reports folder contains reports on library, course enrollment, and information on school, department, faculty, and lecture series.

Grants and proposals are arranged alphabetically by title and consist of applications for federal assistance and proposals for projects including a study of urban growth in Africa, the effects of drought, and the establishment of an International Center.

Provenance: The addition to the Records of the Program of African Studies were transferred to the University Archives by the Africana Library on November 9, 1983, as Accession # 83-160.

Restrictions: None.

Separations: Four inches of duplicate and extraneous material were discarded.

Processor: Rehana Khan, Summer 2006.
