Hungry Generation Archive

"Hungry Generation" refers to Indian poets of the 1960s and early 1970s. This collection consists mainly of correspondence between Indian poet and translator Arvind Krishna Mehrota and Howard McCord, an American poet who edited the anthology Young Poets of India. Mehrota helped McCord locate Indian poets for this and another anthology. The letters contain discussions of poetry in India and the United States and some include poems as well.

The collection also includes typescripts of poems by Mehrota and Malay Roy Choudhury, several Indian periodicals which published poetry, and letters and poems by various Indian poets who submitted material for publication in McCord's anthology. This material was purchased from a California bookseller.

See the Carl Weissner Archive for additional material. Special Collections also has Malay Roy Choudhury's translation The Hungryalist Manifesto on Poetry (Calcutta, H. Dhara, 19--; Ind/H936).
